

The diagram shows a template for an A5 folder, double-sided. It consists of two main rectangular panels. The left panel is a large rectangle. The right panel is a rectangle of the same width but half the height, with a smaller rectangular tab attached to its left side. The entire template is outlined with a thick blue border. Inside this, there is a light blue area and a magenta line. The magenta line follows the outer edge of the template, including the tab. The light blue area is slightly smaller than the magenta line, creating a 3mm gap between them. The text and instructions are located on the right panel.
